

ANIMAL MORALITY
YES! Many think, feel, trust, love, & choose to help others even at their own expense. Naturally Evolved or Supernaturally Designed?

Every observed example in nature shows that coded INFORMATION always comes from an INTELLIGENT mind. So, genetic bio-info and morality logically came from a mind that preceded nature. In contrast, if morality evolved up from animal ancestors, then macroevolutionists should be able to show at least five natural MECHANISMS at 5 stages of major change over time from nothing to microbes to man and morality. But, the theory is unable to demonstrate these mystery mechanisms necessary for morality to have evolved. The five stages of change over time that require blind faith in unknown mystery mechanisms are:

- ↑ MIND? - mystery mechanism for the generation of conscious minds that make up differing MORALITIES?
- ↑ REPAIR? - mystery mechanism that repaired genetic entropy (mutation MELTDOWN) along the way up?
- ↑ DIVERSITY? - mystery mechanism for new coded bio-info for animal diversity WITHOUT a programmer
- ↑ LIFE? - mystery mechanism for the first bio-info/DNA/life genome from NON-living chemicals
- ↑ STUFF? - mystery mechanism for stuff/matter-energy from NOTHING

(SoulCare.ORG for a detailed explanation of these mystery mechanisms of macroevolution. See also GENETIC ENTROPY Dr. Sanford of Cornell).

MACROEVOLUTION has an even greater "ethical" problem. If there is NO objective, universal standard for right or wrong, then evolved "morality" would merely be a survival mechanism. Therefore, if any belief and behavior helps an individual animal or population survive to pass on genes, then it should be accepted as relatively "moral". That would include male animals killing a rival male's offspring, so he could breed with their mother and produce his own offspring. Polygamy would be relatively "moral", allowing a male to pass on more of his genes through many women. Some evo-professors justify adultery as natural on this basis.

JESUS, who claimed to be God incarnate, proved on the cross that the Creator's Way is pure self-sacrificing LOVE, not survival of the fittest. The Bible is His-story progressively revealed across History, from creation through sin & separation, to the centrality of the cross, and culminating in a New Creation – where the wolf and lion will lay down with the lamb.

EVOLVED?

Friedrich Nietzsche
Atheist Evolutionist
 "You have your way, I have my way. As for the right way, it does not exist."

Michael Ruse PhD
Atheist Evolutionist
 "Morality is just an aid to survival and reproduction...and any deeper meaning is illusory...."
"Evolutionary Theory & Christian Ethics," in Darwinian Paradigm

Robert Wright
Agnostic evolutionist
 "Sensual pleasures are the whip natural selection uses to control us, to keep us in the thrall of its warped values system." The Moral Animal: Why We Are the Way We Are: New Science of Evolutionary Psychology

DESIGNED!

Michael Egnor PhD
Intel. Design theorist.
Prof. Neuro- Pediatrics

 If moral law is not God-given law, but rather human opinion, who is to decide what law shall be binding on humanity? The answer is: those with power will decide, and do decide, in our secular world.
